SECURITY GUIDANCE FOR REPRESENTATIVES

As you may be representing a client who is affiliated with the Central Intelligence Agency, the Office of Personnel Security, Central Intelligence Agency is providing the following guidance for your review. This guidance answers typical questions that you may have about working with classified information. The guidance assumes that you have been approved to receive a Secret clearance in conjunction with your anticipated representation of an Agency-affiliated client. If you have any questions about the guidance, please telephone your designated Agency security officer, named in the cover letter.

What does my Secret clearance mean, in general?

You have been granted a Secret clearance in anticipation that representing your client may involve classified information. In fact, the mere association of your client with the Agency may be classified. As a result, you may be authorized access to certain information classified up to and including Secret, provided that an appropriate Agency official has first determined you have a bona fide need-to-know for the information.

Your clearance is for you alone and is limited to your representation of your client in this particular case. It is not transferable to other cases involving your client, to other cases involving other Agency-affiliated individuals, or to matters involving other US Government organizations unconnected with your client. Unless you are specifically authorized by the Agency, your clearance does not allow you to access Agency facilities, interview other Agency-affiliated personnel, discuss classified information with anyone (including persons in your office) who lacks a security clearance and a bona fide need-to-know, and access and/or store any classified documents or other classified information in any form.

What if I need to discuss this case or share information with others in my office?

You may discuss this case or share case-relevant information with others in your office, provided that you do not divulge classified information, including, but not limited to, your client's name and association with the Agency, if this association is classified. If you believe that others in your office will need access to classified information, contact your designated Agency security officer and request that those requiring access also be cleared. The Agency determines who has a need-to-know for classified information and who will be submitted for a security clearance. You may not discuss or otherwise share classified information with other people until the Agency advises you that they have received their clearances and have completed all the steps you are being asked to complete as a cleared representative. If you have questions about whether you may discuss or otherwise share classified information with someone, please contact your designated Agency security officer.

How do I know when information is classified?

Your client should not be providing you with classified information in any form unless the appropriate security arrangements have been made by your designated Agency security officer. If you are in doubt as to the classification of information you have received or wish to receive, your designated Agency security officer will assist you in determining the information's classification status. If your client provides you with information, such as the first and last names (vice first names and last initials) of Agency-affiliated individuals, intelligence sources or methods, site names or specific locations, summaries or details of Agency operations, detailed Agency organizational structures, statistics, and/or technologies, the information is most likely classified. You should handle and protect any and all such information as classified until your designated Agency security officer determines the classification status of the information.

What rules must I follow when working with information that may be classified?

The most important rule is that you may only discuss or otherwise share classified information with people who have an Agency-provided Secret clearance, at a minimum, and an Agency-determined need-to-know for the information. You also may not undertake discussions of classified information in the presence of uncleared persons or cleared persons lacking need-to-know.

A second important rule is that you may only review, create, store, and/or otherwise work with or handle classified information in an Agency secure area. The Agency secure area will be an office-like environment where you may more freely discuss classified or other sensitive details of the case with your client or other cleared members of your office, review classified information, create documents based upon this information, and store any documents or notes based upon this information. The Agency will provide you with paper and pens/pencils, stand-alone information processing equipment (e.g., a personal computer), and storage facilities. Only Agency-provided equipment and facilities may be used to create documents containing classified information. As an alternative, your designated Agency security officer can arrange for classified documents to be redacted into unclassified form for use at your office. You, however, may neither create classified documents at your office, nor may you reconstruct classified documents from redacted, unclassified documents stored at your office.

When working in the Agency secure area, you will be escorted by your client or a cleared person unaffiliated with the case. Your designated Agency security officer will have any documents or notes you wish to remove from the secure area reviewed for classification purposes. If the documents or notes are classified, they must be sanitized before removal or remain in the secure area. Due to the difficulty with reviewing information in forms other than hardcopy, only unclassified hardcopy documents may be removed after approval. Appropriate arrangements will be made to ensure that attorney-client privilege is preserved during the Agency's review of documents for classification purposes.

In what forum may I present classified information, if necessary?

Presentation of classified information in a public forum is never permitted. Most cases do not require the presentation of classified information. However, the Equal Employment Opportunity administrative proceedings are conducted in a classified setting up to the Secret level. If your client requests an administrative hearing under 29 C.F.R. 1614.108(f), either party may present classified information at the hearing. In most cases, it is not necessary to include classified information in the text of motions, briefs, or correspondence relating to the proceeding.

What procedures do I follow prior to submitting a court filing or otherwise promulgating anything related to or based upon my client's case, regardless of the classification?

Prior to submitting a court filing or otherwise promulgating anything related to or based upon your client's case, provide a copy of the filing or other information to your designated Agency security officer, unless you have made other arrangements with the Agency to ensure that classified information is not publicly disclosed. Your designated Agency security officer will ensure that an appropriate Agency representative unaffiliated with the case conducts a prepublication review of the information. This review will ensure that classified information is not disseminated to persons lacking appropriate clearances or approvals.

What do I do if my client fails to gain Agency approval prior to releasing classified information to me or provides me such information outside of an Agency secure area?

If your client fails to gain Agency approval prior to releasing classified information or provides such information outside of an Agency secure area, contact your designated Agency security officer immediately.

What are the penalties for failing to adhere to this guidance?

When you read and sign the Nondisclosure/Secrecy Agreement and the Acknowledgment of Security Requirements form, you agree to adhere to this guidance as well as any other requirements noted in the agreement or form. Your failure to adhere to these requirements may result in the Agency withdrawing your security clearance and/or your breach being referred to the Department of Justice for possible criminal prosecution. The Agency also reserves the right to withdraw your security clearance should it receive any information indicating that you should not have continued access to classified information.

JOHN DOE AND JANE DOE, HUSBAND AND WIFE,

GEORGE J. TENET, INDIVIDUALLY AND AS DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AND DIRECTOR OF THE
CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY, AND THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, DEFENDANTS

DECLARATION OF STEVEN W. HALE

STEVEN W. HALE states as follows:

1. I am one of the attorneys of record for the plaintiffs, John Doe and Jane Doe, know the contents of this declaration to be true and am otherwise competent to testify thereto.
2. In response to plaintiffs' Second and Third Requests for Production and plaintiffs' counsel's additional request to view unredacted documents at a secure Agency facility, defendants refused to produce anything, even in redacted form. In addition, defendants refused to produce any documents, including Regulation C, in a secure Agency facility on October 12, 2000 in Washington, D.C. when Betsy Alaniz and I were in Washington D.C. for this express purpose. In a Rule 37 conference on October 19, defendants acknowledged that, while Ms. Alaniz and I had the requisite security clearances to review additional PL-110 regulations, the Agency's refusal to allow access was predicated on a determination that we "did not have a need to know."

3. As is evidenced by the Stipulation and Agreed Order of June 21, 2000, plaintiffs agreed not to require an answer to the complaint for a specific time during which defendants were to file what defendants' counsel described as "supplemental briefing," allegedly invited by footnote 7 in the Court's June 7, 2000 order. Never did defendants mentioned the filing of a summary judgment motion that would be supported by alleged evidence. If a motion for summary judgment would have been mentioned, plaintiffs would have objected, since discovery had not even begun, and would not have agreed to the Stipulated Order.

I CERTIFY UNDER PENALTY OF PERJURY under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct.

STEVEN W. HALE states as follows:

1. I am one of the attorneys of record for the plaintiffs, John Doe and Jane Doe, know the contents of this declaration to be true and am otherwise competent to testify thereto.
2. Counsel for defendants has demanded, pursuant to a letter of November 2, 2000 that plaintiffs correct what defendants contend is a misleading statement in the reply brief and the corresponding declaration submitted to the Court in connection with the pending motion by defendants. Attached hereto as Exhibit 1 is a true and correct copy of Mr. Malkin's November 2, 2000 letter.
3. Plaintiffs do not believe that the subject statement is misleading in any way. Nonetheless, because of defendants' demand, and in order to promptly clarify any potentially unclear facts, plaintiffs submit to the Court a true and correct copy of their response to defendants' counsel (attached hereto as Exhibit 2), which explains the situation in some detail.

I CERTIFY UNDER PENALTY OF PERJURY under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct.

Re: Doe v. Tenet, et al.
No. C99-1597L, USDC, W.D. Washington

Dear Steve:

I have been reflecting upon our conversation the other day during which I expressed to you my concern over a representation you made in both Plaintiffs' Reply Motion to Strike Portions of Defendants' Reply and the declaration you submitted in support thereof. Specifically you state in Plaintiffs' Reply that:

Defendants even refused to produce additional regulations, which would have included Regulation C, in a secure Agency facility on October 12, 2000 in Washington, D.C. when plaintiffs' counsel were in Washington, D.C. for this express purpose.

Reply at 2. Likewise, in your declaration, you state:

In addition, defendants refused to produce any documents, including Regulation C, in a secure Agency facility on October 12, 2000 in Washington, D.C. when Betsy Alaniz and I were in Washington, D.C. for this express purpose.

Declaration at paragraph 2.

The impression you are clearly attempting to create is that the CIA allowed you and Betsy to travel to Washington, D.C. for the “express purpose” of reviewing Agency documents and that the CIA thereafter refused to make documents available to you. The suggestion that the CIA acted in the fashion you imply is factually inaccurate and you know it to be so.

As you well know and acknowledged during our conversation, you and Betsy were informed in advance of your trip to Washington, D.C. that the CIA would not be making any documents available for your inspection. Furthermore, as you also acknowledged, your trip to Washington, D.C. was not for the “express purpose” of reviewing the aforementioned documents. The fact is that you and Betsy were traveling to Washington, D.C. principally, and in any case, to attend a firm partnership meeting.

I would appreciate your taking immediate action to correct the record on this issue. If no such action is taken by COB Monday, November 6, I will take whatever steps I deem necessary to set the record straight.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

KATRINA C. PFLAUMER

Re: John Doe and Jane Doe v. Tenet and United States of America
U.S. District Court Cause #C99-1597L

Dear Harold:

This letter replies to your letter of November 2, 2000.

You are mistaken in your statement that I "acknowledged" in our recent conversation that Betsy and I were not in D.C. for the "express purpose" of viewing CIA documents. What I acknowledged is what you already knew, that we were there on October 12 to work on this case and were then attending a partners' meeting beginning on October 13. The fact that we had other business the day after our business on this case does not mean that we were not in D.C. on October 12 expressly for the purpose of working on this case.

As I explained in our recent conversation, the purpose of our representation to the Court about defendants' failure to produce documents was in support of our contention that defendants should not be able to make arguments about what is referred to as Regulation C, because this and related documents had not been produced to us. Thus, it was unnecessary to explain all of the details to the Court related to defendants' refusal to produce documents to us. The relevant facts are that we requested that defendants produce documents to us on October 12 and defendants refused. The issue being addressed was not the propriety of the defendants' conduct on a discovery matter but whether Regulation C should be considered by the Court.

What we said in our filings with the Court was accurate. We certainly did not intend to imply nor do we think we did imply that defendants let us travel to D.C. without first advising us that production would not be made and, if that is the impression conveyed, it was done so mistakenly and we apologize. However, your November 2 letter to me is not accurate in the sense of what I acknowledged to you (as addressed above) and does not tell the whole story. In our view, the salient facts are:

1. Ms. Alaniz and I were given Secret level security clearances by the CIA in 1997 for the purposes of representing our clients in their dispute with the CIA. At the time the clearances were granted, the CIA representative showed Ms. Alaniz and me several documents which, while not bearing classification designation, apparently were considered by the CIA to be classified.

2. On two subsequent occasions (November 6, 1997 and August 3, 1998) I was allowed to view documents related to this case (a very few, I might add) at a CIA facility in the Washington D.C. area. These documents were not marked as classified but apparently are considered classified by the CIA.

3. After defendants filed their current motion to dismiss, we requested production of the documents referred to by Mr. McNair in his declaration and we noted Mr. McNair's deposition. Defendants produced several redacted regulations (referred to as Regulations A and B) and permitted us to depose Mr. McNair on September 7, 2000.

4. When Mr. McNair disclosed during deposition the existence of additional PL-110 regulations (classified at the Secret level), I asked about obtaining these additional PL-110 regulations. Mr. McNair responded that he believed that our security clearances were no longer valid, having been granted only for the administrative proceedings. Later you also told me as a basis for not producing documents to us that you thought our security clearances were no longer valid.

5. By letter of September 29, 2000 (copy attached), I wrote you to follow up on one or more telephone conversations we had previously had about our request to review documents at the CIA. We had requested to see both the documents that I had already been shown and my notes about those documents, which the CIA retained, as well as the additional PL-110 regulations about which Mr. McNair testified. Since you had insisted that these requests be formalized, we had, provided to you on September 25, 2000 with Plaintiffs' Second Requests for Production and provided you on September 29, 2000 with Plaintiffs' Third Requests for Production.

6. My letter of September 29 advised you (as I had also advised in earlier conversations) that Betsy and I were going to be in Washington D.C. for other business during the week of October 9 but that we were going to go a day early for the express purpose of working on this case and reviewing CIA documents. During our conversation, I also explained that we were doing this to save expenses. As we have advised you before, Perkins Coie has expended in excess of $600,000 on this pro bono case. I further explained that, with regard to the documents I had been shown before by the CIA, I wanted to refresh myself as to the contents of the documents and, in addition, I reminded you that Betsy had not seen some of the documents and I wanted her reaction to them. You indicated that even with a formal discovery request you doubted that the Agency would produce anything at all, including the documents previously reviewed. I urged that defendants reconsider that position, stressing that there could be no rational basis to denying us access to documents already shown to me. As I recall, you agreed to discuss the matter further with the Agency.

7. On Tuesday, October 10, you communicated to us the CIA's refusal to produce additional documents or even allow us to review the documents I had already seen twice or my notes.

8. On Wednesday, October 11, Betsy and I traveled to Washington D.C. as planned for the express purpose of working on this case on Thursday, October 12, the day before our partner meeting began. Our tickets for this travel were purchased on September 12. Our activities on October 12 were related solely to this case and included meetings with Members of Congress and the staff of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. We were available on the 12th to review documents at the CIA but were not permitted to do so. Had defendants wished to mitigate the unfair surprise of dropping Regulation C on us in your October 17 reply brief, you could have made it available to us

October 12. As was later explained (see below), you did not because the Agency contends we did not have a “need to know.”

9. We discussed the defendants’ October 10 refusal to produce any documents to us at a Rule 37 conference on October 19. During that conference, Mr. Pines of the CIA, who was participating by phone, explained that the refusal to produce the documents at the classified facility was not due to our security clearances no longer being valid (he confirmed that they in fact remain valid), but because, according to the CIA, we no longer had a “need to know.” When I asked how we could have a “need to know” during the administrative proceeding but not now, I understood Mr. Pines to say that a “need to know” is determined strictly from the government’s perspective and that viewed as such the government’s interests were not served by allowing us access to documents at this time. I then attempted to explain that in our view national security interests were served by the appropriate adjudication of defector disputes, including those that raised Constitutional issues, through a process that protected classified information and allowed the issues to be resolved on their merits and that allowing us continued access to relevant documents furthered this purpose. Mr. Pines disagreed with this, but I was unable to understand his logic.

We do not think it likely that the Court has gotten a misimpression of defendants’ conduct in denying us access to documents in Washington D.C. on October 12. As is explained above, the issue in the current motion is whether Regulation C should be considered by the Court. However, since you have demanded that we clarify the situation, we intend to do so by submitting a copy of your letter and this response to the Court.

We trust you will let us know if you have any further concerns.

Sincerely,

/s/ STEVEN W. HALE
